

Theraplay Level One and Marschak Interaction Method (MIM)

Presented by Dr Fiona Peacock

11th, 12th & 25th, 26th February 2027

32 CPD
hours

Theraplay is a short term attachment-based play therapy for children and their care providers with a proactive focus on adult-child relationships, attachment theory, intersubjectivity and brain research. Theraplay is based on the natural patterns of healthy interaction between adult and child with a focus on:

- Attachment, self esteem, and trust through fun and play
- The four essential qualities found in parent-child relationships: Structure, Nurture, Engagement and Challenge
- Creation of empathetic connection between child and carer
- Resolution of behavioural problems

The Marschak Interactional Method (MIM) is an observational based assessment method used to evaluate parent-child relationships.

On this training you will improve your comfort and skills in administration and interpretation by focusing on examples of MIM's, as well as improve the breadth of your Theraplay skill set through practicing and learning how to adapt Theraplay to work with trauma and complex families

What is this course about and what are the benefits?

What are the learning objectives?

- Understand the history and theory of Theraplay
- Improve knowledge of how to administer the MIM including methods of recording non-verbal behaviours, making inferences and formulating hypotheses
- Explore how a MIM report is organised and used as a guideline for planning treatment, and how a feedback session is organised
- Enhance understanding of the interactional basis of parent-child attachment and self esteem
- Develop skills in the differentiation and use of the four Theraplay dimensions

Who would benefit from this course?

Theraplay is suitable for professionals and practitioners with a background in child development, adoption and permanency or psychology. This may include: Psychologists, Psychiatrists, Social Workers, Occupational Therapists, Teachers, Counsellors, Play Therapists, Family Therapists, Early Childhood specialists. Those considering the training are advised to read the best practice guidelines on the Theraplay UK website: <http://www.wp.theraplay.org/uk/practicum/best-practice-guidelines-and-requirements-for-the-uk/>

Why do your Theraplay training at Adoptionplus?

Undertaking a training programme is a considerable commitment of time, energy and money. We want you to get the best out of your investment.

All our Theraplay training is delivered by Dr Fiona Peacock who is a highly experienced Theraplayer and general therapist educator <https://peacockcounselling.com>.

Here at Adoptionplus we have developed a unique training model within the UK. All our training is delivered in a small group setting or no more than 8 participants. Level 1 is delivered in a format where you have the first 2 days of training, some time to go away, digest and maybe even practice some elements, before returning for days 3 and 4 ready to consider how to apply the first principles to your work.

As part of our offer Fiona offers a group online check in one month after your level one so you can explore how the learning is translating into practice.

From our experience of delivering Theraplay training over the years, we have found the small group training model enables you to experience this way of working in a highly supportive group environment. Being a small group the input can be adapted to address your specific working environment, or indeed you own learning needs. Some of our small groups have remained in touch with each other post training offering each other valuable peer encouragement.

Here is some of the feedback we have received about our small group Theraplay training.....

"The trainer was absolutely amazing. The 4 days were structured so well, everything was clear and flowed well and lead to application/practice."

"The whole course has been amazing and so insightful."

"So informative, interesting and thought provoking. Loved the interactive experience of the games and have come away with lots to think about and reflect on."

Why we do Theraplay training differently

At Adoptionplus, we believe learning a therapeutic model isn't just about understanding the theory. It's through experiencing and practising the approach that you develop the insight, understanding and confidence to use it effectively in your work.

That's why we have developed a unique approach to Theraplay training in the UK. All our training is delivered in person and in small groups of no more than eight participants, creating the best possible environment to experience, practise and really understand this way of working.

Small groups. More opportunity to experience and practise.

Theraplay is an experiential model. You need the opportunity to take part, practise the activities, experience how they feel and reflect on what is happening — not simply hear about them.

Keeping groups to a maximum of eight creates a supportive environment where everyone has the opportunity to participate, ask questions and receive individual input from the trainer.

It also means the training can be responsive to you. Your trainer can understand your particular working environment and adapt discussions and examples to your practice, experience and individual learning needs.

Time to learn, practise and come back.

We also deliver our Level One training differently.

You complete the first two days, then have time to step away, digest what you have learnt and perhaps begin experimenting with some of the principles in your own practice.

You then return for days three and four with new experiences, observations and questions. This gives you the opportunity to deepen your understanding and think more carefully about how the principles of Theraplay can be applied to the children and families you work with.

Support as you put it into practice.

Learning doesn't end when the four training days finish.

One month after completing Level One, Fiona offers an online group check-in, giving you the opportunity to reconnect, share what you have tried, explore what is working, ask questions and think together about how the learning is translating into practice.

A small group can become a valuable network.

One of the additional benefits we have seen is the relationships participants develop with each other.

Some of our small group participants have remained in touch long after the training has finished, offering each other valuable peer support and encouragement as they continue developing their Theraplay practice.

Our small-group, in-person Theraplay training gives you the space to experience it, practise it, reflect on it and develop the confidence to use it in your work.

Who will be delivering the training?
